Quit throwing money away...

Your time is valuable. If you are running your business and serving your customers all day, only to skip out on family activities so you can spend hours in the evening managing your books—or worse yet, turning away business because you need to sort out your financials—you are losing time and money.

Many small business owners think they can save money by handling their own bookkeeping or passing the task off to a family member. Unfortunately, bookkeeping often gets pushed aside in favor of daily business operations, so your paperwork ends up collecting in boxes for months or years at a time and becomes a nightmare when you finally have to deal with it.

Maximize your growth potential with a virtual bookkeeper

When you bring in a professional bookkeeper, you've got a trusted advisor on call who is looking out for your best interests. My sole job is to help you understand and manage the financial health of your business. Many businesses who work with me end up saving money because they aren't spending their own valuable time trying to keep up with their books.

Plus, when you hire me, I'll be in close contact with you and your company while doing the bulk of my work from my Conway, Arkansas, office. That means you get all the benefits of top-notch bookkeeping services without the need to provide office space or hire a W-2 employee!
